

Sidecarcross of Nations in Dardon Gueugnon/F

Union Jack on the podium

Being part of the national team is the pinnacle of most athletes' careers. It's no different in sidecar motocross. The once-a-year team world championship is called the sidecarcross of nations. The format: the three fastest teams from each country compete against each other in two heats. Out of the six results, the best five count for the team ranking.

Anyone looking for the German eagle on Noah Weinmann's jersey will instead find the Union Jack. As the passenger of his regular British driver Dan Foden, the German took advantage of the rule allowing one foreign member per national team.

Finally the German mercenary also contributed his part for the British success at the season highlight in Dardon Gueugnon (near Dijon). With sixth and fourth places, Foden/Weinmann rounded off the brilliant performance of the Brits Wilkinson/Millard (third and first place). The reward: the silver medal at the team world championship.

There will be major changes in the Foden/Weinmann team for the 2027 season. This newsletter will provide the news next Wednesday.n.
